

Transoft Solutions Launches Ahead of the Curve

New Transoft Solutions' Blog Aimed at Giving Transportation Infrastructure Engineers Corporate, Industry, and Tech News.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 30, 2009 – Vancouver, BC, Canada

Great software companies are more than the products they develop and sell. Great software companies develop the community they service by providing usable information and transparency. It is in this spirit that Transoft Solutions, developers of industry leading software for the engineering and architectural communities, announces the launch of their new corporate blog, Ahead of the Curve - at www.transoftsolutions.typepad.com/ or connected to through Transoft Solutions main website at www.transoftsolutions.com.

"In keeping with our goal to keep users better than just up-to-date, we're excited to launch our new blog Ahead of the Curve," says Vice-President of Marketing and Sales, Noel Dolotallas. "With this blog we've create a place for readers to discover and share in the passion that drives Transoft Solutions."

Ahead of the Curve was developed to be a space dedicated to providing transportation engineers with usable information from within the AEC (Architecture, Engineering, and Construction) industry, the world of CAD technology, as well as all of Transoft Solutions news, perspectives, and articles. Readers can provide their comments, keep up to date with upcoming events and webinars, and follow Transoft Solutions' recent tweets on Twitter. Additionally, in keeping with the character of the blog's title in addition to developing an information rich community for transportation engineers, readers are encouraged to submit ideas for posts, links to sites of interest, feedback, and/or transportation engineering related articles. All submissions should be sent to the blog's administrator at dh@transoftsolutions.com.

"We hope our new blog will find a way into your list of must-reads," adds Mr. Dolotallas. "We also want readers to keep returning whether it's for industry news and insights, product tips and tricks, or learn more about the innovative minds and unique culture at Transoft Solutions."
